After obtaining his law degree in 2000, Michele worked for a number of established and well-known law firms in Savona, Italy and specialised in company and commercial law, handling a high percentage of property cases.

Michele moved to London in 2003, sporting a keen desire to develop his English language skills and work in a dynamic and enterprising environment.

He worked for a medium sized law firm, with responsibility for Italian Law and once again became heavily involved in the property department, assisting clients with every aspect of buying properties in Italy.

During his career, Michele has continued to study and, in addition to his law degree, has completed courses in the Legal code of Conduct, Forensic Studies and Alternative Dispute Resolutions.

From 2006 to 2007 he also studied at the London College of Law and was awarded the Qualified Lawyers Transfers Test, which forms part of the process of becoming a Qualified English Solicitor.

Michele speaks fluent English and Italian.
